Wednesday, November 20; 8:00am – 12:00pm

Fee: $105 (This preconference is open to all. Registration is required.)

Description:

This preconference workshop will cover essential topics including: (1) AI/ML fundamentals and applications and their relevance to primary care (2) Practical strategies for implementing and evaluating AI/ML interventions (3) Hands-on exploration of Large Language Models (LLMs), focusing on prompt engineering and ChatGPT (4) Future directions and opportunities in AI/ML for primary care research.

○ PR02: CASFM Research Methods: Unveiling the Mechanisms of Effect, A Workshop on Causal Mediation Analysis

Wednesday, November 20; 8:00am – 12:00pm

Fee: $105 (This preconference is open to all. Registration is required.)

Description:

This workshop aims to provide participants with a comprehensive understanding of causal mediation analysis techniques, ranging from conceptual foundations to practical applications.

○ PR03: NAPCRG Trainee Pre-conference: Strengthening Primary Care through an International Lens

Wednesday, November 20; 10:00am – 2:00pm

Fee: $0 (This preconference is open to trainees and mentors. Registration is required.)

Description:

The trainee pre-conference workshop will consist of skill building and career development sessions, as well as relevant topical sessions on primary care challenges and opportunities in different jurisdictions. This workshop will consist of didactic sessions (e.g., presentations), as well as group discussion and activities. This pre-conference workshop will allow for ample opportunity for both formal and informal discussion with peers.

○ PR04: CASFM: The Nature of Data

Wednesday, November 20; 1:00pm – 5:00pm

Fee: $105 (This preconference is open to all. Registration is required.)

Description:

Researchers from across the CASFM working groups will present their perspectives on how to address power asymmetry within data, including: Data sovereignty, and how participatory approaches can help manage multiple epistemologies (Participatory Health Research working group); How to leverage practice-level patient and provider data infrastructure (Practice Based Research Network working group); Identifying and prioritizing topics for AI/machine learning investments, and how to transform data into meaningful information (Health Information Technology working group); and Understanding dynamics and adaptations to local systems through feedback from grounded data and learning (Complexity Science working group).

○ PR05: Patient/community engaged research: characteristics of the “Just Right Research Team”

Wednesday, November 20; 1:00pm – 5:00pm

Fee: $0 (This preconference is open to all. Registration is required.)

Description:

In this workshop, members of the PaCE Committee will make several short presentations to highlight various aspects of what might be considered as characteristics of the “just right research team” including aspects of the WHO’s Astana Declaration, principles of engaged research, aspects of primary care research, knowledge translation, education and advocacy.

○ PR06: How might we cultivate equity meta-governance? A Call-to-action for NAPCRG members

Wednesday, November 20; 1:00pm – 5:00pm

Fee: $105 (This preconference is open to all. Registration is required.)

Description:

Equity meta-governance is about co-creating fair rules, fair play, fair games, fair opportunities, and fair rewards to benefit all on a healthy planet. How might we learn to: 1) Distinguish between moral-amoral-immoral uses and abuses of power? 2) Negotiate shared meanings about fairness to enable ethical power-sharing and co-elevate egalitarianism? 3) Deliver exponential opportunities to solve our wicked problems that arise from ineffective governance, inept stewardship, incompetent leadership, and degenerative and un-sustainable practices of living beyond planetary boundaries?
